United Water Offers New Program for Needy Customers

United Water Pennsylvania recently launched a first-time customer assistance program designed to help residential customers who are having trouble paying their water bill.

Called "UW Cares," the program provides grants of up to $100 to qualifying residential customers of United Water Pennsylvania who have experienced a recent hardship and have demonstrated good-faith effort to pay their water bills. Customers must pay at least $20 toward their bill in order to qualify.

The company contributed $25,000 toward the program that does not come from customer revenue. "We realize that a financial crisis can happen to anyone, regardless of background", said John Hollenbach, United Water Pennsylvania Vice President.

The Salvation Army was chosen as the intake agency that prescreens interested customers. The choice was based on the organization's national reputation and the fact that it has free parking at each location.

Interested customers must complete and sign an application provided by the Salvation Army. A good-faith payment must have been made within 90 days of the application date. Qualifying customers are notified of approval or rejection of a grant.

Bill inserts announcing the new program were included with December, 2005 water bills. For further information, contact the company toll-free at 800 299-8972.
